

Addendum I1 (New-7/15)

Guidance Memorandum I: CACFP Requirements for Household Size-Income Statements
HSIS Verification Requirements
Acceptable Support Documents for Verification

➤ Household Income Sources

- Documents supporting the reported income sources must be current.
Current income means income received by the household for the current month (the month in which the HSIS is completed) or for the month prior to HSIS completion. If such income does not accurately reflect the household's annual income, income may be based on the projected annual household income. If the prior year's income provides an accurate reflection of the household's current annual income, the prior year may be used as a base for the projected annual income.
- Add all household income sources for all household members together to calculate the total household income.
- The documents must show the following information for each income source:
 - ❖ The name of the household member receiving it
 - ❖ The date(s) it was received
 - ❖ The amount received
 - ❖ The pay period
 - ❖ Payment frequency

Employment Earnings (Wages/Salary for each job) (Not Self Employed)	Verify Gross Income <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ✓ Most recent paycheck stub ✓ Employer statement ✓ Tax documents (i.e. 1040 and relevant schedules) (See below for more information on the Form 1040.) 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● When wages are paid by the same pay period throughout the year (i.e. every 2 weeks), collect the most recent pay period's check stub(s). ● If paid seasonally (i.e. construction workers, teachers, migrant workers), obtain the 1040 from the previous calendar year. The most current monthly income will distort the actual amount of income earned annually. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ❖ If more than one pay period of check stubs is submitted to reflect monthly income earned, they should be for consecutive pay periods. Then, average the gross income reported from all of the check stubs. Example: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ❖ 3 bi-weekly paychecks: add the gross income from the 3 paychecks together and divide by 3 to calculate the average. Then, using the correct multipliers, take the average and multiply out to annual income (unless this is the only reported household income; then, leave it as bi-weekly income and determine the eligibility by referencing the bi-weekly column on the Household Size-Income Scale (GM 1 – Attachment 4). ➔ Do not add the paycheck amounts together (instead of calculating the average of the 3 bi-weekly payments) and try to convert 6 weeks of income to annual (or monthly) income.

Households with Wage Income and Self Employment Income

Using Form 1040 for Income Verification

- The wage earnings and self employment earnings must be reported separately.
- Income from wages cannot be reduced by the amount of a business loss from the self employment income source. If self employment income is negative, it must be listed as zero.
- If the Provider is married but files separately, income earned by the Provider's spouse must be reported (and verified) separately.

- No single line on the Form 1040 adequately captures the household income.
- Differences between how household income is defined by the CACFP and the IRS for tax reporting purposes on tax forms:
 - ❖ CACFP does not allow for deductions of business or investment losses; losses must be treated as "zero" income. (Cannot be a negative amount)
 - ❖ CACFP requires annual distributions from IRA accounts, pensions, social security benefits, and other retirement plans to be included within the reported household income. (The IRS permits this income to be partially excluded for taxation purposes.)
- Subtract amounts reported on lines 15b, 16b, and 20b and add in amounts on 15a, 16a, and 20a.
- ❖ CACFP requires child support, welfare benefits, and other income to be included. (The IRS permits this income to be excluded.) Refer to GM I, Section G, for all income that must be included.

→ The income from these sources must be reported separately on the HSIS and separate support documents for these sources must be submitted.
